Mrs. A. Marburg and Mrs. H. C. Mulroy gave a thimble party Friday afternoon for their mother, Mrs. A. E. Jettmore, at her home, 414 West Tenth avenue. The affair was a surprise for Mrs. Jettmore and was in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Among the guests were included the old friends of Mrs. Jettmore, those whose homes like hers, have been in Topeka many years. Those who were asked to the party were: Mrs. Martha Hackney, Mrs. D. M. Valentine, Mrs. M. C. Hammett, Mrs. George W. Veale, Mrs. W. D. Gibson, Mrs. C. C. Foster, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. T. A. Beck, Mrs. Nathan Price, Mrs. A. L. Redden, Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Mrs. W. W. Manspeaker, Mrs. G. B. Hetherington, Mrs. Abram Bergen, Mrs. S. H. Allen, Mrs. C. F. Spencer, Mrs. F. L. Loveland, Mrs. J. P. Kaster, Mrs. H. O. Garvey, Mrs. S. S. Estey, Mrs. H. C. Linn, Mrs. A. A. Weiskirch, Mrs. W. A. Watson of Bloomington, Ill., Mrs. Silas Rader, Mrs. George Noble, Mrs. M. Weighman, Mrs. D. L. Lakin, Mrs. S. J. Crawford, Mrs. A. W. Knowles, Mrs. J. G. West, Mrs. Kenneth MacLennan, Mrs. C. D. Skinner, Mrs. P. J. Clevenger, Mrs. F. W. Watson, Mrs. A. A. Weiskirch.

Mrs. C. G. Foster entertained informally today at bridge for Miss Kitty Bridenstein, of New York, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. W. Bronson. Other out of town guests were: Miss Jane Wills Smyser of New York City, and Mrs. Frank Moss of St. Marys and Mrs. Fanny Guilbor, who is spending the winter with Mrs. Moss.

The Atlantic club will meet Monday, January 13, with Mrs. H. I. Cook, 1017 Tyler street.

The severe lines of the modified derby, though rather trying in some cases, are wonderfully becoming in others. At least hats of this type are pleasingly neat and jaunty and seem particularly suitable as a crowning touch for the tailored suit. The clever adjustment of a feather may mar the smartness of these hats. The one shown in the drawing has the narrow rolling brim, the lower portion of the high crown covered plainly with brown panne satin. The upper part of the crown is also covered with this same material laid full on the top and slightly fitted by gathers under a twist of brown velvet. A single soft brown plume is the sole trimming.

The G. H. Hodges family will arrive in Topeka Sunday evening, and will be at the Throop hotel until after the inauguration, when they will move into the Governor's House.

The coming of the new mistress of the governor's official home is of a good deal of local interest. The women who are concerned about public and political affairs will be glad to know that Mrs. Hodges is interested in them, too, and that she is said to be an excellent speaker. At a love feast the Democrats held in Kansas City, Kan., the men and women citizens celebrated together, and Mrs. Hodges was on the program. The story of the banquet says that she made the best speech of the evening, though her competitors for the honor were old-time spellbinders and seasoned politicians in the flush of their triumph.

The inaugural reception, which will be an event of interest next week, will be held Monday evening in the state house. The members of the committee in charge of the arrangements are: General C. I. Martin, Mr. L. M. Penwell and Mr. J. Will Kelley. The reception committee and the receiving party will meet in the bank commissioner's office and in the office of the board of control. The receiving line will stand in the rotunda on the first floor, and those who will be in the line are: The retiring governor, W. R. Stubbs, and Mrs. Stubbs, Governor-elect and Mrs. G. H. Hodges, General and Mrs. C. I. Martin, Justice and Mrs. W. A. Johnston, Justice and Mrs. Silas Porter, Justice and Mrs. R. A. Burch, Justice and Mrs. Henry F. Mason, Justice and Mrs. J. S. West, Justice

For the first time in many years the Episcopal general convention, also a triennial body, will meet in New York city, and subject, "Playgrounds and Yards for Children," and Mrs. Edwin O'Neill will have a paper on "The Value of Music in Education."

costing $200,000, is building to accommodate the convention's sessions. No legislation of marked public interest is now suggested. There will attend the convention, however, fully 25,000 visitors. The convention will remain in session for nearly a month.—New York Tribune. Topeka is always well represented at these triennial conventions which are held in October. Mr. and Mrs. Meade are now planning to take their annual vacation trip on this occasion and to attend the convention.

A gown which is cut simply but made effective by the use of fine lace is the subject of the sketch today. Wide lace revers of different shape are used on the bodice and the front is filled with more lace having an edge of deep points. These are laid over a yoke of net. A fine quality of cashmere was used for the gown, bodice of which, beneath the elaborate lace trimmings, was severely plain. The elbow sleeves were finished with a circular ruffle of the material lined with velvet and below this is a pleated ruffle of net. The underskirt is plain with slightly draped tuck of the material.

The Chicago Evening Post has the following to say of Rudolph Ganz, who is to appear in recital Tuesday afternoon, January 14, at the Grand opera house:

"The Liest arrangement of the 'Weinen Klagen' theme of Bach was in all the main outlines. His giving of the sustained melody in the second movement was very beautiful, with the quality of heart in it to make the meaning carry home. There was great variation of dynamics, and in the loudest forte no sense of forcing the instrument, nor striving for power, simply he has it in unlimited amount for use whenever he desired. There was great dignity through it all, an attitude almost austere toward his art, and the greater the demand the better he played."

Mr. Ganz is the only pianist on the Parkhurst series.

The Music Study club will resume its year's work after the holiday vacation, at a meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Gaw.

The Nautilus club will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. R. B. Steele, 1244 Tyler street.

AT THE CONCERT.

"The sole test of a musical public," writes Arnold Bennett in Harper's, "is that it should be capable of self-support—that it should produce a school of executive artists of its own whom the rest of the community will respect." This test is not applicable entirely to local musicians, yet it is becoming more so all the time, and a concert given last night at the First Baptist church, attended by a large audience than turned out to see some of the famous ones who have visited the town, is some proof that the people are interested in the work the home musicians are doing.

The program for Friday night included organ, piano and vocal numbers, and in addition a reading, "A Royal Princess" from Rosetti, was given by Miss Lillian Stone. Her ability, by the way, is quite worthy of comment. Professor Dwight Heaton Seymour, who is organist for the First Baptist church, furnished the organ music. A Bach number, "Fantasia and Fugue in A Minor," one of the best things that has been written for the organ, was on his program, with its appeal to the educated taste of the audience. A descriptive selection, "On the Coast," by Dudley Buck, and the opening and closing numbers of the program were played by Professor Seymour. He also played the organ in a duet, "Kamennoi Ostrov," by Rubenstein, in which the piano part was taken by Miss Bertha Schnatterly. Miss Katherine Wood of Bethany college played two short piano solos, and had the second piano in a duet in which Miss Schnatterly played the first piano. Miss Wood is recognized as a pianist of ability, and her playing is as clear and sparkling as a pebbly rill. Miss Schnatterly, a young girl still wearing her dresses to her shoe tops, plays with a grace and exactness, and with an absence of self-consciousness quite noticeable in so young a person.

Mrs. Stuart Churchill Forbes of Kansas City played the violin numbers and was enthusiastically received, for Topeka people have heard her on various occasions, and expected the treat she never fails to give. Her sister, Miss Helen Fowler, played her accompaniments. Her first number was a Spanish symphony by Lalo, after which she was recalled. She played Dvorak's Humoresques, which people never tire of hearing, and in which the tonal warmth and sympathy of her playing is marked.

The songs for the program were given by Miss Nellie Kouns and Miss Sara Kouns. Miss Kouns sang Victor Herbert's Spring Song from Nantomia, and responded to an encore with an evening song, in which her high and covered tones were beautifully clear and dainty. Miss Sara Kouns gave a Scotch song, "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," and her encore number was a "Bright German selection. Her voice and her methods have a peculiar individuality hard to describe. She sings easily and with fullness and beauty of tone, establishing her command of the essentials of vocal art.

The entire program was of pleasing variety and quality, and it is to be presumed that the listeners went home happy.
